

A Change in Layout Creates Luxurious Opportunities

The original plans called for a porch off the bathroom, but after numerous discussions, it was determined that there was insufficient clearance for French doors. With the elimination of the porch and the doors, the homeowners now had four extra feet of usable space. SWS used the additional footage to design a luxurious steam shower, complete with benches, body sprays and oversized rain head.

“As we went through construction and had a better chance to completely visualize how certain areas would lay out, SWS was open to adapting the design. They easily worked with changes along the way and made sure that we maximized our space and took full advantage of our views.”

SWS Builders' Inside View

“By our changing the design, the homeowners got a pair of spectacular features, rather than just one. They still get a beautiful view of a pond; in fact, in this case, windows do a better job of framing the view than doors. Second, instead of just a shower, they now have a spa-like retreat.”
